

The Love Triangle

Sternberg's triangular theory of love identifies three different components that combine to form various types of love:

- Intimacy = feelings of closeness, connectedness, and bondedness
- Passion = drives that lead to romance, physical attraction, and sex
- Commitment = the decision to love another and maintain that love

